

Federal Court Intervention in a Party Nomination Dispute

Hinkleman v. New York State Board of Elections
(David N. Hurd, N.D.N.Y. 5:08-cv-207)

On February 22, 2008, a voter and two organizational parts of New York's Independence Party filed a federal class action complaint in the Northern District of New York seeking resolution in their favor of a dispute over what part or parts of the party were authorized to name a nominee for a February 26 special election to fill a vacancy in the state's senate.<sup>1</sup> On the day that the complaint was filed, the court reassigned the case from Judge Neal P. McCurn to Judge David N. Hurd.<sup>2</sup>

On February 25, Judge Hurd granted a motion to intervene filed by a candidate opposing the candidate supported by the plaintiffs.<sup>3</sup> Judge Hurd denied the plaintiffs preliminary relief.<sup>4</sup>

New York's court of appeals, however, ruled on February 25 that the federal court intervenor could not pursue a state court challenge against the federal plaintiffs' candidate's being listed as the Independence nominee, because the federal intervenor was not a member of the Independence Party.<sup>5</sup>

The intervenor won the election.<sup>6</sup>

Having received the desired relief in state court, the plaintiffs dismissed their federal action on March 19.<sup>7</sup>
