

Casting Provisional Ballots in the Wrong Precinct in Michigan

Bay County Democratic Party v. Land (1:04-cv-10257) and Michigan State Conference of NAACP Branches v.
Land (1:04-cv-10267) (David M. Lawson, E.D. Mich.)

Local branches of the Democratic Party filed a federal complaint on September 28, 2004, in the Eastern District of Michigan’s Bay City courthouse, alleging that a directive issued by Michigan’s director of elections violated the Help America Vote Act (HAVA).¹ The directive stated that provisional ballots would only be counted if they were cast in the correct precinct.² With their complaint, the plaintiffs filed a motion for a preliminary injunction.³

The court assigned the case to Judge David M. Lawson, who was the court’s only judge in Bay City.⁴ Judge Lawson set a hearing on the injunction motion for 15 days later.⁵ Judge Lawson declined to use the plaintiffs’ proposed order to show cause—“a relic of the past and unnecessary, except, perhaps, in contempt proceedings”—because it improperly suggested that the defendants had the burden of persuasion.⁶

On October 1, three organizations filed a similar action in the same district.⁷ Judge Lawson consolidated the two cases on October 5.⁸ That same day, the second set of plaintiffs filed a motion for a preliminary injunction.⁹ On the next day, five voters, four of whom were also county or municipal clerks, moved to intervene as defendants.¹⁰ On the day before the hearing, Michigan moved to join the U.S. Justice Department as either a party or an amicus curiae.¹¹

On the day of the hearing, Judge Lawson denied Michigan's October 5 motion to transfer the case to the Western District, which includes the state's capital.¹² In cases of this type, Judge Lawson is always prepared for threshold issues: venue, standing, ripeness, mootness, and other jurisdictional issues.¹³

Judge Lawson determined that an evidentiary hearing was necessary to address factual allegations.¹⁴ He often finds live testimony more efficient than affidavits and counter-affidavits in resolving factual issues.¹⁵

Two days after the Wednesday hearing, the Justice Department asked Judge Lawson to delay ruling on the injunction motions until after he could review the Department's amicus curiae brief, which the Department would file on Monday.¹⁶

The Court is always interested in the position of the United States on matters of national interest, such as is presented in this case. However, if the Court permits the amicus filing, in fairness it ought to allow the parties to the case an opportunity to respond. Given the need for a prompt decision, the Court finds that the request of the United States is not timely. Moreover, the Court has reviewed the filing and determines that it adds nothing to the arguments already advanced by the defendants and the other amici.¹⁷

Judge Lawson resolved the injunction motions on Tuesday, October 19.¹⁸ First, he denied the five voters intervention, but he permitted their participation as amici curiae.¹⁹ He found that voters can enforce HAVA rights through 42 U.S.C. § 1983.²⁰ He determined that HAVA guarantees that provisional ballots cast for federal offices be counted so long as they are cast in the correct city, village, or township.²¹
